The aim of WikiProject Music is:

- to define a set of properties that can be used by music infoboxes.
- to map and import all relevant data that currently is spread in Commons, Wikipedia, and Wikisource.
- to establish methods to interact with this data from different projects.

Overview

Note that most items do not yet use such a specific ontology as described in this table. In particular, items about songs are likely to be about both the composition and track; items about singles are likely to conflate the single release and the track; and items about albums may also include identifiers for individual versions of the album.

Wikidata is an open, multilingual structured knowledge base that can be read and edited by both humans and machines.

Wikimedia commons is an online repository
of free-use image,
audio, and other
media files

You may upload works that you created entirely yourself

This includes photos and videos of:

- natural landscapes, animals, plants.
- public figures and people photographed in public places

• useful or non-artistic objects

• original graphs, maps, diagrams and audio.

Remember: By sharing your work on Wikimedia Commons, you grant anyone permission to use, copy, modify, and sell it without notifying you.

We can't accept works created or inspired by others

By default, you can't upload someone else's work.

This includes material such as

- logos
- CD / DVD covers
- promotional photos
- screenshots of TV shows, movies, DVDs, and software

• most pictures published on the Internet

• drawings of characters from TV, comics, or movies — even if you drew them

What you can post to Commons

...with two main exceptions:

You can upload someone else's work if the author granted permission for anyone to use, copy, modify, and sell it.

You can upload your photographs of old art, statues, and buildings (usually over 150 years old).

In conclusion...

You can upload your original works.

We can't accept works from others without their explicit permission.

Thank you for your help; this is important.
